

Children Full of Life

A Creative Dialogue with Sensei Kanamori

A one-day event in Arnhem, Netherlands
Monday 10 September 2012

Creative Dialogue

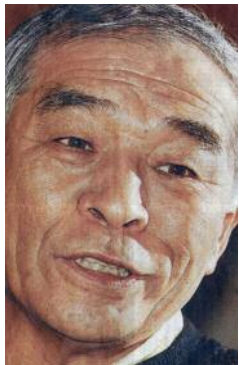

How true are we to our creative fire (our unique purpose and passion) and how do we give that form in the organisations within which we work?

- How do we release the creative potential of our children and young people and ourselves?
- What kind of leadership does this call for?

A Creative Dialogue organises around such questions. It works with challenging and creative processes and actively engages with other participants to explore what the question means for ourselves and the organisations in which we work.

On Monday 10 September 2012 Sensei Kanamori visits Arnhem, at the invitation of platform hetkind (The Child). This one-day event will be hosted by nowhere ecl, Pabo (University of Applied Sciences, Arnhem and Nijmegen) and Interstudie-NDO. Sensei Kanamori will be a speaker during the Creative Dialogue; his story will inspire us to write our own.

The documentary: 'Children Full of Life'

'Children Full of Life' gives a deeply moving account of Mr Toshiro Kanamori, an inspiring and authentic teacher who within the conservative Japanese education system is able to create connection and belonging for his students. He encourages children to enjoy life and 'be happy' by teaching them how to find their element and how to help other children find theirs. He creates a class where children have strong emotional connection and he offers ideas about how to do that. His manner of working has been captured in a film that has been viewed across the world.
